FLAG FACT:

In 1831 the mother of Captain William Driver gave him an American flag to fly from the mast on his first command as sea captain. He named it "Old Glory" and flew it as his ship sailed around the world twice..

Capt. Driver hid the flag inside a quilt when Tennessee, where Driver then lived, succeeded from the Union. It was unfurled only when Union troops once again occupied Nashville in 1862. Though the flag was once hidden, it is now openly and proudly displayed.

DR. ANDREW WAKEFIELD WHERE IS THE DOCTOR WHO REALLY CARES?

Dr. Andrew Wakefield, a now well-known gastroenterologist started his career by receiving his medical degree from Saint Mary's Hospital Medical School (part of the University of London) in 1981 where three generations of his family have studied. In 1985 he qualified as Fellow of The Royal College of Surgeons, and in 1986 was awarded a Welcome Trust Fellowship to study small intestine transplantation in Toronto, Canada. Wakefield also published about 130 papers on bowel disease.

Dr. Wakefield says in an interview with the Daily Bell, that "The first and most fundamental roll of clinical medicine, the kind of medicine I was trained to practice, and my parents and grandparents were trained to practice, is to listen to the patient or patient's parents and they will tell you the problem." So when parents brought their children to him, he listened and searched for answers where other doctors had simply told the parents it was only autism and did nothing.

His research found bleeding masses that blocked the colon in almost 100% of the children—a condition called lymphoid nodular hyperplasia. The body interpreted the nodules as waste and tried to pass them through the body, but could not, because they were attached to the lining of the colon. Because it was attached, a pathological folding up of the colon could occur. Doctors call this intussusceptions and it can be fatal. Dr. Wakefield also found that the inflammation was autoimmune, meaning the body was attacking itself. So, he treated the children's bowel disease and inflammation with anti-inflammatory and diet AND the children got

AUTISM ON THE RISE PARALLEL TO IMMUNIZATIONS

Statistics have shown that in 1970 there were only 4 cases of autism in 10,000. Then the number of immunizations increased with the introduction of DTP and the combination of the MMR vaccine in 1971. When the 1980s came along, two new TMS vaccines and Hib were introduced and the cases of autism rose to 1 in every 1,000. Following suit, Hepatitis B was added in 1993, Varicella (a chicken pox vaccine) in 1995, and a Rotavirus in 1998, which also accompanies an increase in the cases of autism to 1 in every 500.

Then in 2000 they added Hepatitis A, pneumococcal, and influenza, and we see the cases of autism spectrum disorder at 1 in every 166 as reported by the CDC...

Your Children Can Attend School Without Immunizations

Many parents today are educating themselves on the benefit versus risk concerning the danger of so many vaccines. Do you know that children now receive 39 doses before they reach the age of two? Years ago children only received 6 vaccines. Do the math—who is really benefitting from jabbing our children with so many vaccines?

Your children CAN attend school WITHOUT immunizations. All you have to do is obtain a vaccine exempt affidavit from your state. In Texas to request affidavits online: <https://webds.dshs.state.tx.us/immco/affidavit.sht>

To request by mail in Texas: Dept. of State Health Services, Immunization Branch (MC 1946), PO Box 149347 Austin, Texas 78714-9347 or Fax request: 512-458-7544. Once you receive the affidavit packet, sign only in the presence of a notary. Then you present it to the doctor, school, university, or day care facility. Be sure to make a copy and get the signature of the person who received it, in case it gets lost. (Each form valid 2 years from date of signing). You can order up to five forms per child. Each school they attend requires a new exempt affidavit, so be prepared. Find your state: click here search for exempt info.

biologist from Dublin, found measles virus in 99% of an autistic gut, whereas in normal children, it is only 6.6%. However, the virus was not from the natural measles disease. It was positively identified from the measles vaccine component of the MMR shot.

In 1998 Dr. Wakefield's paper was published in the Lancet—a world leading medical journal. Now, because of his continued commitment to help the children, his research paper was retracted (taken out) on what was claimed to be scientific grounds. In addition, even though the bowel disease has been confirmed in five separate countries—Italy, Venezuela, the U.S., Canada, and the UK—the General Medical Counsel in Britain revoked Wakefield's medical license. Article Link to Interview with Dr. Wakefield. Video link to interview with Dr. Wakefield.

Dr. Wakefield has also resigned from Thoughtful House, a much needed treatment and research center for kids with autism. He did this because he felt the controversy was making it hard for his colleagues to continue their work and he wanted to finish the book, Callous Disregard, where he reports the real truth.

Dr. Wakefield no longer speaks at Autism Research Institute conferences where he was known to bring encouragement and hope to parents based on scientific fact and sound research.

Sticking to his theory "has cost him his job, his livelihood, and his country." He says he feels, "Frustration and sadness because I went into medicine believing it to be one thing—a discipline that puts the patient's well-being, the patient's welfare, above all other consideration. No compromise. What I think frustrates me and perhaps even angers me more is the way in which the children have been discarded. What happens to me doesn't matter. What happens to these children does matter."

At all costs Dr. Wakefield has stood for truth with a real sense of right and wrong and is presently on a mission to reinstate his research and credibility. He is taking legal steps with a defamation suit filed January 3, 2012 against the British Medical Journal, UK journalist Brian Deer, and the BMJ's editor, Fiona Godlee.

(Center for Disease Control) - over a 700% increase. Tragically, the numbers are increasing at alarming rates. In the last 10 years alone autism related disorder have jumped to 1 in 110 and in boys, it is now 1 in 70 as reported by Thomas Insel, the director of the National Institute of Mental Health. Coincidence? Congressional representative Christopher Smith describes it like this, "We have an epidemic on our hands." And Congressional representative Chip Pickering states, "More children will be diagnosed with autism this year than AIDS, diabetes, and cancer combined." Parents need to know the facts.
